LACRIMOSA (I)

The Heathlands, France, 1920. A young couple, just married, is crossing the threshold of the house that will be their home, a little house secluded in the middle of the wood and close to a black lagoon.

She, Linon, is young and in love. He, Méric, a handsome man always smoking a pipe tobacco that smells of spices and attracts little yellow butterflies. With them, the three sisters of the groom completely covered with black veils, mourning the death of their father, and a priest.

These are the protagonists of a new love story.

This is the beginning of Lacrimosa, the fourth volume of the Spaccacuore series.

Once again Ana Juan and Matz Mainka offer us a romantic and passionate narration, mysterious and fascinating, but above all full of tears.

LACRIMOSA is also available in: English version and French version
